

Considerations for rehabilitation centers serving people with disabilities

Disinfect the center on a daily basis and provide hand sanitizing stations at entrances as well as throughout the facility

Provide each individual with their own assistive products; shared equipment must regularly be cleaned and disinfected

Promote good health practices, such as washing your hands thoroughly and often for at least 20 seconds

Enforce use of masks and maintain social distancing at all times

Considerations for rehabilitation centers serving people with disabilities

Measure the temperature of all employees and trainees on a daily basis and deny entry to anyone with a temperature of 37.5 degrees Celsius or higher - all suspected COVID-19 cases must be reported

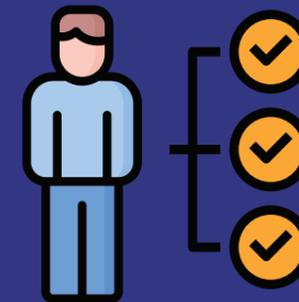

Reduce the student-coach ratio to 1:1

The Ministry of Labor will conduct random inspections to identify and take legal action against violators

Preserve service continuity by developing a post COVID-19 operations plan that weighs the potential risks and the benefits of remote programs

All programs and sessions are to be provided on an optional basis
